1. What do you enjoy most about working at Anthony Harper?

I love the people I work with and the people I work for.

My colleagues really are a lovely bunch of people to work with. There are no scary partners residing in large corner offices. Everyone is approachable, friendly and supportive – from the office junior to the senior partner.

2. What is your role and do you find your work rewarding?

I work within the banking and finance team. It is a hugely rewarding role. Over the last few years the team has grown and is now considered by leading international directories one of the top 9 banking teams in the country.

The practice is varied and I am challenged by my exposure to different areas of law on a daily basis. There is quite simply never a dull day.

Our clients are wonderful. We are lucky to work with such supportive organisations who provide us with stimulating challenges and opportunities.

3. How do you juggle the balance between work and home?

As a mum to two young children, opportunities to work flexibly are incredibly important. Fortunately, Anthony Harper is supportive and accommodating. I never feel I have to sacrifice my family to move forward in my career or vice versa.

4. How has your career developed?

I started my career as a litigator but was given the opportunity to take on a broader range of work. I eventually found a home in the banking, finance and insolvency team and never looked back. Each step of my career is documented and clear guidance is given on what is expected if you want to progress.

Recently, I have turned my attention to attracting and retaining new clients and have been supported in my initiatives by the management team.

I am proud to be a part of the Anthony Harper Team.
